

LOVES SHE IS WIFE OF YOUNG

Pretty Young Woman Whom Lawyer Denies Purposes to Establish Her Rights and May Prevent Another Wedding.

JUSTICE CORROBORATES
STORY OF MARRIAGE.

Attorney Won Her Consent
While on Short Trip to Hoboken—He Was Reported Engaged to Mrs. Molineux.

Mrs. Amy Tronnen Young, the pretty young woman Alexander C. Young, the attorney, declares is not his lawful wife, told to-day how Young had won and married her, asking her to keep their marriage a secret. She displayed the certificate that bound her to Young as his wife, and she told of those who had seen her wed him and of his treatment of her since he had given her his name and vowed to love and cherish her.

Young's denying this girl—for she is hardly more than a girl in years—is one of the strangest acts since he came into notoriety. He declares that she is not his wife. At the same time she displays a marriage certificate dated last January, and back of this certificate are the records in Justice Seymour's office, in Hoboken. Then, too, there is the statement of the Justice and his good wife. He performed the ceremony making Amy Tronnen Alexander C. Young's wife, and Mrs. Seymour was one of the witnesses.

"He is my husband," Mrs. Young said to-day when she was seen at a Fifth avenue hotel. "I have no interest in him whatever, but I don't want any woman to marry him believing that he is free to take a wife. I am most anxious to rid myself of him. When he passes out of my life then let him marry whom he chooses or who will choose to have him."

Mrs. Young is a woman whose beauty and attractiveness are pronounced. Her experience with Young has not creased her spirits by any means, and there are no lines about her face to show that sorrow has crossed her path. "Please don't think that Alex Young has broken my spirits," continued Mrs. Young. "He hasn't. No one could. I have the spirits of a healthy girl, born of a proud and healthy father and mother. He simply has maligned me and he has tried in every way to bring disgrace on me and mine."

Comes from Vineland. Mrs. Young came originally from Vineland, N. J. She has wealth, education and refinement, and the veins of her parents flow the best blood of Norway. Her parents are among the best people in New Jersey, and it is they she seeks to protect them from the tongue of slander.

"If some one will tell me why I consented to become the wife of Alex Young I will thank them," the young woman continued. "It was all done and over before I realized what a serious step it had taken."

"I came to New York to visit and while here met Alex Young. He then was having a great deal of trouble after Louise McAllister had been divorced from him and had married Mr. Jonger. You will remember how he seemed to be so anxious to claim the children. At any rate he became very attentive to me. He told me how he was persecuted; how all the stories of his being a bad man were lies and I felt sorry for him. One afternoon last January he called on me. I was then working at No. 11 East Twenty-sixth street, and he told me he had to make a business call in Hoboken. He then said: "Come on and go with me. It will make the afternoon so much pleasanter."

"I had confidence in the man. Then, too, I was complimented because he had told me that the loved me and had begged me repeatedly to marry him. While we were in Hoboken he asked me to marry him at once. I have never known that a man could plead so much for me. Before I knew it I must have lost my senses and I answered 'Yes'."

Like One in Trance. "We went to Justice Seymour and I stood like one in a trance and answered the necessary questions that bound me to that man. Mrs. Seymour was one of the witnesses.

"I had no sooner married Alex Young than he began to show that he did not care for me. He did everything to stun any affection I may have ever felt for him. He neglected me in every way possible. Knowing that I had money he would not even pay bills that were his by every right. When he began talking about my being only one of ten women he knew who could call him husband. He even went so far as to tell persons who told my parents and they came to me in horror-stricken. I was so ashamed by the attack that I decided to leave America. A few weeks after I was married to the man and let me say right here that I never lived with him—I left for England. I had my own estate and with my own money I went to a house in London for a term of three years. I met some of the best people in England and was elected a member of the Empress Club.

"Then the story of my not being the wife of Alexander C. Young was brought to London. It was told among my intimate friends, and they began to show a coolness to me that was unmistakable. He had said that I decided to go to America. A few weeks after I was married to the man and let me say right here that I never lived with him—I left for England. I had my own estate and with my own money I went to a house in London for a term of three years. I met some of the best people in England and was elected a member of the Empress Club.

MRS. AMY TRONNEN YOUNG, WHO PROVES SHE WED LAWYER.

of a business woman with my name linked to Alex Young. I am simply helpless, and yet he has sought fit to make me appear little better than a woman of the streets."

Mrs. Young then told of the lengths to which Young had gone to get revenge on his former wife, Louise McAllister.

Reception Is Chilly. "After she married Mr. Jonger," she continued, "she sailed for Europe with her husband after Young had kidnapped the child at the dock. Before she and her new husband had arrived in Paris the story of her divorce, the kidnapping and the second marriage had preceded her."

"The consequence was that the poor girl did not get the cordial reception she expected. Who was responsible for this? There was only one person on earth mean enough to have done it." Mrs. Young then told what a fascinating man Young is with women who are young and trusting. "He is one of the best talkers I ever knew in my life."

Arrested in Plot to Blow Up Road. Mrs. Young came originally from Vineland, N. J. She has wealth, education and refinement, and the veins of her parents flow the best blood of Norway. Her parents are among the best people in New Jersey, and it is they she seeks to protect them from the tongue of slander.

Prisoner Supposed to Be One of Gang of Dynamiters Who Demanded $50,000 from Northern Pacific Railway.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 5.—A man giving the name of Langdon has been arrested in connection with the Northern Pacific blackmailing conspiracy. Suspicion was attached to his alleged action in buying powder for a mine which had been idle for years.

The time-limit set by the blackmailers for the railroad to deposit $50,000 to save the road from being injured by dynamite expired last night, but no move was made by the dynamiters to put their threat in execution.

The tracks were carefully guarded at every point. ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 5.—General Suez, Kimberley and General Passenger Agent Fee, of the Northern Pacific Railroad, when asked to-day if there were any new developments in the $50,000 blackmailing plot against the road by Montana bandits, said there was not.

COTTON PRICES WAVE.

Weather Report and Liverpool Weakness Affect Values.

Weakness marked the opening of cotton to-day, with prices 14 to 17 points lower in near options, due chiefly to fears of October notices. The only unsatisfactory points in the map were some heavy rainfalls in Texas and possibility that low temperature in the Central States would work South. October was off 14 and December 17 points. While the rest of the list was down from 13 to 14 points, Galveston and Savannah receipts were 6,000 bales over last year. Later advices from Liverpool reflected decided weakness, which led to renewed selling here, but as there seemed to be fairly good supporting orders on hand a slight rally occurred.

The opening prices were: October, 9.25; November, 9.31 to 9.32; December, 9.28 to 9.29; January, 9.29 to 9.30; February, 9.31 to 9.32; March, 9.33 to 9.34; April, 9.40 to 9.41; May, 9.41 to 9.42; June, 9.42 to 9.43.

COTTON MILLS START UP. AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 5.—After being closed more than two months the cotton mills of the Edwards Manufacturing company resumed operations to-day on full time. The mills shut down on account of the high price of raw cotton on July 21. There is now favorable prospect for steady work for the 1,200 operatives.

STOCKS LISTLESS WITH PRICES LOW

All Trading Influences Favored a Rise, but Market So Heavy Values Could Not Be Lifted to Appreciable Degree.

BIG OPERATORS WAITING.

Testing the Speculative Temper for Another Advance While Giving Investment Buyers Free Way—Volume of the Dealings Small.

Trading was almost at a standstill when the market closed to-day, while prices were half-way between the highest and lowest of the session. All the news was favorable, but stocks were so heavy there was no chance of lifting them to any appreciable degree. Crops were reported good, railroad earnings satisfactory and general conditions more than fair and brokers held that there was reason to look for improvement.

At the opening short selling and liquidation forced prices down to the lowest point of the day. Prices soon reached the point where liquidation ceased. Then the bears began to circulate stories about certain traction men being in additional trouble. These stories were not taken seriously and had really little effect on the stock market. There seemed to be a tendency on the part of the large interests to leave the market alone to see if the public buying was large enough to maintain the recent advance.

After the first hour the market became very dull and good reports from railroads, gains from the sub-treasury by the banks, the semi-annual announcement of the payment of the steel dividend all failed to help matters. Prices all day fluctuated fractionally. The advances and the declines were immaterial and of little interest.

Late in the afternoon there was some really good buying from outside sources. One purchase was of 5,000 shares of assorted stocks to be held for as long as is necessary to bring a good profit. There was quite a little buying for investment and this buying is what caused the best of the day, which took place in the early afternoon.

It became plain near the close that some of the larger operators were feeling the market with a view to another advance. The close was a little better and the Waldorf-Astoria crowd, after being sold stocks all around the room at the opening, were buyers of the close. The chief selling later came from those traders who had bought stocks last week on the decline.

New York Central, which was under pressure, became strong late in the day. It became known that the stock sold short quite a little of the stock, as the sellers will not have to borrow it until Oct. 13.

It was pointed out that if the sale of the New York Central stock last week had manipulation it had been the most successful ever seen in the street. There was a possibility to believe that they did any business it was through new brokers and was well concealed. The last hour prices advanced slowly but steadily and soon were well above the low prices of the day. Some stocks showed a gain of 10 to 15 points. Common was 1-2 under the opening, preferred was 1-4 over the opening. Union Pacific was 1-2 under the opening. St. Paul lost 1-2, while Brooklyn was at about the opening price. This rally, however, did not close the market to-day but $2,000 to $3,000 of the market's steel dividend would be 1 per cent, the regulation figure. The money was all taken in small lots.

The total sales of stocks were 386,000 shares and of bonds $2,266,000.

THE WHEAT MARKET.

Wheat opened weak to-day, prices being off 1 cent in comparison with Saturday's closing figures. This was due to the weakness of cables, heavy Russian shipments last week, sharp declines in the outside markets and lack of support. Corn broke about 5-8 of a cent with wheat and the absence of unfavorable crop news. Trade was mostly professional in both markets.

New York's opening prices were: Wheat—December, 83 5-8; May, 82 5-8; bid, Corn—December, 31; May, 43 3-4; bid, Chicago's closing prices were: Wheat—October, 76 3-4; December, 76 5-8; bid, May, 77 1-2; bid, Corn—October, 44; December, 44 3-8; May, 44 1-8.

Halt in Steel Strike. PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—The officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers have not, as yet, ordered a strike at the New Philadelphia, O., plant for the enforcement of the limit of output clause in the scale. Efforts are being made by the members of the Executive Board of the Sixth District to adjust the differences and no action will be taken until a further report is heard from them. President Shaffer stated to-day that the situation was grave, but he still hoped for an amicable settlement.

PAPER MILLS TO REOPEN. RUMFORD FALLS, Me., Oct. 5.—Although the strike at the International Paper Mills was declared off last week some men objected to making personal application for the positions occupied by them previous to the strike. Nevertheless, many have done so and the mills will start up in part to-morrow or to-day. It is thought that the full force of 700 men probably will not be working for some time.

STOCKHOLDERS INCREASE. During the last six months the number of stockholders of the Pennsylvania Company increased about 25 per cent. In March there were 25,000, and there are 35,000 holders of the stock. The transfers during the period for the stock have been for 10,000 a day. The stock was transferred, and five shares.

CONTEMPT WRITS IN BEAVERS'S CASE

Judge Holt Orders U. S. District-Attorney Youngs, His Stenographer and Inspector Little to Show Cause.

DISOBEYED SUBPOENAS.

Denied Validity of Commissioner's Processes, and Application Now Is Made to Have Them Punished for Staying Away.

Stayed by an order of United States District Judge Holt, restraining further hearings in the action for removal brought against George W. Beavers, the indicted postal official, the examination set for to-day of the former Chief of the Salary and Allowance Division was adjourned to Oct. 15. Judge Holt signed three orders returnable on Oct. 9 at 12 o'clock, requiring United States District-Attorney Youngs, of Brooklyn; the latter's stenographer, Miss Amy Wren, and Post-Office Inspector Frank E. Little to appear before him and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court in disobeying subpoenas issued by United States Commissioner Hitchcock, requiring their attendance as witnesses on Sept. 15 at the examination of Beavers.

A similar application was made before United States District Judge La-combe on Friday last, but that judicial officer said he knew of no section of the Federal laws authorizing him to punish a recalcitrant witness who had wilfully ignored a subpoena issued by a United States Commissioner. It developed that even the Commissioner's right to issue such a process was in doubt.

The order to show cause was secured on affidavits of Mr. Seymour, Beavers's counsel, and William Klein, a clerk in the former's office, who swore that subpoenas had been served upon Mr. Youngs, Miss Wren and Inspector Little. District Attorney Youngs and Miss Wren ignored the subpoenas, informing the process-server that they did not consider Commissioner Hitchcock's subpoena was binding when served without the district wherein he had jurisdiction. Klein had not decided the motions to adjourn, having been advised that the Commissioner's subpoena carried no authority. Two other hearings on the indictments returned against Beavers in connection with the Columbia Supply Company and the International Recording Company are scheduled for Oct. 13, but it is probable that they will also be adjourned until a later date. If Judge Holt has not decided the motions to adjourn the three disobedient witnesses by that time.

Mr. Beavers was not present in court.

NOT IN THE SYNDICATE.

Independent Bookings Still Made for Hurlst & Seamon's Theatres.

The statement in a despatch from Syracuse that the booking of all independent attractions and all theatres controlled by Hurlst & Seamon had been cancelled and that hereafter their houses would be open only to syndicate attractions, is denied here. Ben Hurlst refused inquiry in reference to the matter to Stair & Havlin, who make the bookings for the Hurlst & Seamon theatres in Syracuse and Rochester, and George H. Nicolai, of that firm, said:

"The statement is not correct. We did cancel three nights' bookings of Isabel Irving in 'The Crisis' because we considered it would be better to play Miss Irving one night in each town later in the season. The Hurlst & Seamon theatres are not closed against any worthy attraction, independent or syndicate."
